

the privacy act has been extremely efficient.. the phone calls we received from telemarketers came at all hours.. from early morning to late at nite.. they would not let me interupt their speach, and yet they were always interrupting my daily life. I had to end up hanging up on them... to lessen this act is definitely a step in the wrong direction. I don't understand why we can not have the protection we want. Isn't it our right not to be pestered at all given hours?
